HUGE FLIGHT OF GEESE OVER CITY

Wild Fowl Honk Overhead from Dusk Until Dawn Last Night

THOUGHT LOST OVER THE CITY

Dazzled by Brilliant Lights They Circle in Marathon Flight All Night

La Crosse is today in deep mystery, trying to solve the appearance of scores of flocks of wild geese that circled the city and vicinity last night, apparently lost. Residents living in the extreme southern part of the city and those as far north as Grand Crossing heard the honk of the wild birds from shortly after dark until daylight.

First Heard at Dark

Early in the evening persons on Main street were attracted by the sounds coming from above them, and seeming to be not more than 200 feet over the city. Closely scanning the dark sky, they were able to see ghostly white forms loom up close to the ground, as the geese circled above the bright street lights.

At first the birds did not attract a great deal of attention, other than that they were welcome visitors, as they were thought to be only on their way from the cold north to the south.

As the hours grew shorter, and the streets were emptied of sightseers and shoppers, and the squawking became more frequent and louder, the city came to the conclusion that a large flock had been lost and being attracted by the lights of the city had settled down for the night on a marathon fly. That they never left the confines of the town was proven by reports coming from different sections of the city. At all times while the city was in darkness they were heard honking overhead.

Sound of Large Flock

At times the sounds would be few and far away, and at other times they would be close and sound as if hundreds of fowl were in the band.

Old hunters, who aver they were heroes at the time when wild geese were common around La Crosse, advance the theory today that shortly after dark a band of the flyers located the lights of the city and flew down and after they were settled for their long night's vigil, they were joined at intervals of an hour or so all night by other flights.

Scores of hunters were out with their shot guns early this morning on the edge of the city in the hopes that the geese would settle on the ground to feed, before resuming their travel to the sunny southland.

This morning they had vanished, not a single hunter caught a glimpse of them.

FAITH DESTROYED LOSES EVEN RING

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 30.—The jury found that Paul Feldstein owned the ring and Miss Jeanette Adler said today she had lost faith in even woman's romantic rights.

A month after he had embarrassed her by running off on the day set for their wedding, Feldstein unexpectedly entered Miss Adler's arcade shop. She was washing her hands and the $210 solitaire lay upon the sink. He took it, explaining to her that he must realize upon it to indemnify "the woman who made him break the engagement."

Then she sued.

NO ORDERS FROM MAYOR SAYS COURT

Judge Higbee Restrains Sorensen from Bossing "Coppers" Pending Rehearing of Fight

NEW FACTS MAY CHANGE CASE

Rules Adopted by the 1889 Council and Authority Granted by Charter Overlooked Before

Mayor Ori J. Sorensen is again restrained from issuing orders to the police department or any of its members. This time it is by order of E. C. Higbee, judge of the circuit court, who Tuesday decided the mayor to be legal head of the La Crosse police.

Following the discovery of rules for the governing of the police department, which were adopted by the council in 1889 and a charter provision which seems to give the council the authority to dictate the government of the department, attorneys of Chief Webber appeared before Judge Higbee and requested that the matter be reopened. This morning he signed an order for the mayor to show cause why the case shouldn't be re-opened.

To give the police chief opportunity to file affidavits in the matter, November 10 is the day set for the arguments.

The petition for a re-hearing was presented to the court this morning by A. H. Schubert, one of Webber's lawyers.

PRAISES BOB'S VOTE

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 30.—Senator La Follette's vote for the tariff measure was praised by Miss Ida M. Tarbell in an interview here today. She is the author of a book on "The Tariff in Our Own Times," which traces the tariff history from the close of the civil war.

"Wisconsin is one of the most enlightened states," said Miss Tarbell," and I have great respect for the many ways in which the university has been an impetus to the progressive work of the state, especially through its extension department. I highly approve of President Wilson's action in passing the tariff measure and I think it will be a step toward downward revision. Mr. Wilson is, I think, one of the most estimable men who has ever occupied the presidential chair."

MILWAUKEE CARS STOP

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 30.—While the boss, who came to work in his motor car and was therefore on time, roared and sputtered over the conspicuous absence of his "help," one hundred thousand Milwaukeeans walked to work this morning. Between the hours of six and seven-thirty, interurban and street car traffic was completely at a standstill. The cause of the tie-up has not been learned, but it is believed to have resulted from a break in a trans-river cable.

PRUNING KNIFE ON APPROPRIATIONS

Unusually High-priced City Government and Big State Tax Levy Is Cause

MAHONEY WOULD REDUCE FUNDS

Favors Chopping Amount Allowed Health Department and Will Oppose Additional Park Work

The pruning knife is due to be wielded overtime when the city budget for the coming fiscal year is considered tonight by the council as a committee of the whole.

The city "dads" are already in a quandry over the tax proposition, the cost of city government within the last year being much higher than in previous years. Some are claiming the increase state tax levy will work havoc with all estimates and that nothing but the shaving knife will keep the city within the 22½ mill tax limit.

Several of the city departments will find their appropriations curtailed if suggestions of Alderman Paul W. Mahoney are followed out. Today Alderman Mahoney said that he would suggest, among other things, that a reduction be made that he would suggest, among other things, that a reduction be made in the appropriation for the health department. The north side alderman argues that the work of the department is insufficient for two men and that one man could handle all of its affairs without any great additional energy.

Mr. Mahoney will oppose propositions for additional park work next year.

"I am in favor of parks and will favor an appropriation sufficient to keep up those we already have. We are short of money, however, and I think new work should be postponed until such time as we can see our way clear to pay as we go."

Twenty thousand dollars is the estimate for the streets. Mr. Mahoney believes this item could be shaved $5,000 without working hardship upon the board of public works.

The two water ordinances—one by the mayor which provides for a commission to operate the water plant, and the other providing for the abolition of the board of public works and the administration of the water affairs by an expert—are the two big propositions to be discussed at the meeting tonight.

The meeting was called for the purpose of permitting citizens to appear and express opinions as to just how the new plant should be run. The public is invited to be present.

KILLED ON PLATFORM

RACINE, Wis., Oct. 30.—Tony Brunoa, an Italian workman, 22 years old, stole a ride on a Northwestern train this morning by clinging to the steps of the baggage car. ODD THAT YANKEES DON'T PLAY POLO AT POLO GROUNDS

LONDON, Oct. 30.—Britishers were surprised today to learn from their American friends that all is not polo that is played on the polo grounds. The current issue of the Daily Graphic, publishing a picture of the crowds outside the New York polo grounds for the world's series, says:

"Polo is popular in New York. The polo grounds was rushed by an excited crowd when the gates opened for a world's series. The police were bowled over like nine-pins and many people did not pay for admission."

COW KICKS BUCKET AT TANGO STRAINS

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Because Penelope, a thoroughbred Ayrshire cow, had not browsed through any tango music back on the farm, she became skittish at the National Dairy show, and kicked the bucket.

When she kicked the bucket, she also kicked John D. Nichols, wealthy Cleveland dairyman, out of first prize in the milking contest. Nichols was disqualified and Edward Schiverick of Buffalo, N. Y., who had squirted more of the white liquid into his pail than any other contestant, was given a big leather medal.

MANY PERISH IN MOROCCAN GALE

Four Disastrous Wrecks Are Caused by Terrific Storm on Coast

TWO STEAMERS POUND ON ROCKS

Lifeboats Unable to Get to Them for Rescue Because of Heavy Sea

CASA BLANCA, Oct. 30.—Many persons were reported dead today in four disastrous wrecks on the Moroccan coast, due to a terrific storm that raged all night. As high seas continued today it was impossible to get an estimate of the dead and injured. The Greek steamer Missolonghi and the German Martini were totally destroyed during the night and all hands were believed lost. The Spanish steamer Lyria and the French Carabelle were pounding to pieces on the rocks today. Perhaps some among their crews and passengers escaped.

The sea was so rough today that it was impossible for rescuers to get near any of the stricken ships. Men could be seen clinging to the rigging of the French and Spanish steamers which were rapidly pounding to pieces. Many futile attempts were made to get to them with lifeboats.

The gale was one of the most severe ever seen of the coast of Morocco and many ships were blown out of their courses.

ADMIRAL'S WIDOW FREED OF CHARGE

Mrs. Jennie May Eaton Acquitted Before Dawn Today of Slaying Her Husband

SHE RESCUED HER OWN CASE

Looked Bad for Her When She Took the Stand but Her Story Saved Her

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Oct. 30.—After seven months' imprisonment on a charge of having murdered her husband, Rear Admiral Joseph G. Eaton, by poison, Mrs. Jennie May Eaton stepped from the court house here early today a free woman.

It was before daybreak when the jury, which had heard the case against Mrs. Eaton, filed into the court room after eight hours of deliberation and announced the acquittal of the accused woman. She gripped the arms of her attorneys standing on either side of her and then sank into a chair. The news was flashed by telephone to the Eaton home at Assinippi, where the accused woman's crippled daughter, Dorothy, and her aged mother, Mrs. Virginia Harrison, had waited throughout the night. Mrs. Eaton was then hurried to a waiting automobile and sped away to join them.

Verdict Before Dawn

It was 7:45 p. m. yesterday when Judge Aiken completed his charge and gave the case over to the jury. A large crowd waited in the court room throughout the night for the verdict. Before daylight word came from the foreman that a decision had been reached. Judge Aiken hurried from his hotel near the court house and at 5:10 the verdict was announced. The crowd had been warned against any demonstration, but a faint cheer which was stopped by a sharp order from Sheriff Porter, could not be restrained.

Many believed it was the record of Mrs. Eaton as a wife, mother and daughter, as told by herself on the witness stand which had the greatest influence in causing her acquittal. Although the prosecution was at no time able to prove a direct case against Mrs. Eaton the circumstantial evidence was damaging when Attorney Morse announced that Mrs. Eaton would take the stand.

Failing conviction, the prosecution hoped to prove Mrs. Eaton insane. On the stand she was clear headed and convincing. She developed the story of her life as a life of service to her husband and her daughters, and withstood all attempts by the prosecution to involve her in contradictions.

Proved Him Drug User

The defense proved the admiral to be a drug user, and his wife explained that she hurried home on hearing her daughter's story because she knew the admiral must be under the influence of drugs and needed "protection."

The sympathies of the spectators who had heard her describe everything that was vicious, swung to the accused woman. The five physicians placed in the court room by the prosecution to observe the prisoner for signs of insanity failed.

Mrs. Eaton is today practically penniless. Her aged mother was weakened by her ordeal on the stand and the strain of the trial. What is left of the Eaton family faces a difficult future.

Mrs. Eaton said today: "I am so glad, most of all because of my aged mother and my crippled daughter, both of whom need me. It means so much to them. I hope that a new life will be opened to me and that my trials and tribulations are ended."

Attorney More, Mrs. Eaton's chief counsel, said he expected the verdict. He declared that it freed an innocent woman, but probably meant that the mystery of Admiral Eaton's death would remain unsolved.

"I had tried for six months to learn what was behind the poison which caused his death, but my investigations have developed no satisfactory explanation," he said.

BOARD TO MEET

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 30. — The state board of public affairs will hold a meeting here Monday.

MOVES FURNITURE AND SPOUSE HOME LATE GETS HURT

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 30.—Mrs. William Jensen was yesterday seized with a desire to move her furniture to different positions. She began on the upper hallway of her home. Her husband is under the care of the city physician today as a result. Coming home early this morning he navigated his usual course. His top-knot hit a what-not and after that he knew not what not his top-knot hit not. Neighbors and doctors disentangled him at the foot of the stairs from odd pieces of bric-a-brac. He almost broke-a-back.

SPENDER'S ROLE ENDS IN PRISON

$18 a Week Bookkeeper Who Traveled as Prince of Spenders Found in Brooklyn

BLAMES WOMAN WHEN CAUGHT

Declares Greater Part of $50,000 Shortage Went to Girl Who Posed as Wife

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The role of millionaire played by John C. Schildknecht, an eighteen dollar a week bookkeeper in the Washburn-Crosby Flour company's office, ended today when Schildknecht was sent to the Tombs prison charged with embezzlement of nearly $50,000.

For nearly a year the bookkeeper and a young woman, who said she was his wife, lived in princely style at the Garden City hotel. There Schildknecht was host at some of the most extravagant parties of the season. To his friends in Garden City, he was known as a prince of spenders and was believed to be enormously wealthy.

Two months ago, Schildknecht disappeared. A shortage of about $50,000 was discovered in his firm's books. An indictment was found by the grand jury against Schildknecht. Last night Schildknecht was taken from a rooming house in Brooklyn by detectives.

Schildknecht told the police he was through with the "crooked life." He said the greater part of the money had found its way into the hands of the girl.

"Get the girl," he said. "Keep a watch over her and I'll give you enough on her to send her away for the rest of her life."

PROBE STRIKERS' CHARGE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Secretary of Labor Wilson today announced that he is thoroughly probing the charges that the Colorado mine owners may attempt to import Mexican strikebreakers, some of them said to be afflicted with smallpox.

Acting on a letter presented to him by Senator Thomas of Colorado, the secretary now has agents investigating at Eagle Pass, Texas, and elsewhere.

"We have found that Mexican refugees at Eagle Pass are afflicted with smallpox," said the secretary today. "but we have not discovered thus far that the mine owners are seeking strikebreakers in that place.

"Should we find the charges true, we will strictly enforce the laws against entry of aliens afflicted with loathsome disease and we will apply the clause barring aliens likely to become public charges."

FORCES READY FOR ACTIVE SERVICE IN MEXICAN REPUBLIC

Army and Navy Prepared for Duty Although Wilson Still Hopes for Peace

SERVICE ORDERED ON WAR FOOTING

Quiet Instructions Issued to Keep Men Ready for Trouble at Short Notice

FINAL EFFORT TO LOSE HUERTA

President Gives Serious Consideration to Diplomats Decision Force Is Needed

GALVESTON, Texas, Oct. 30—Col. Frank West, commanding the Second cavalry at Fort Bliss has been ordered to proceed to Galveston with his entire command, the horses to be left behind. Here the regiment of cavalrymen will board transports now waiting in the port, but where they will go on the transports is problematical. It is said they may go either to Vera Cruz or New York, and although officers here are exceedingly noncommittal, the opinion is that they will sail for Vera Cruz. Meanwhile, the Second division of the army here, is being kept in preparation for a move on short notice.

BY JOHN EDWIN NEVIN
(Staff corresponden of United Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30. — The army and navy are ready for active service in Mexico. President Wilson still hopes they will not be needed there. He is still pinning his faith to moral suasion to secure peace south of the Rio Grande. But he is overlooking no possibility and quiet instructions have been given to keep the allied services on a footing where they can be utilized in the field on short notice.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—General Felix Diaz will be transferred to a merchant steamer at sea. Acting Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt, after a conference with President Wilson, wirelessed orders to this effect to Admiral Fletcher.

The admiral is instructed to transfer Diaz to the New York and Cuba mail steamship northbound after it has left its last Mexican port of call. Diaz will be sent north on the Tacoma. The transfer will be made after the merchant liner has left Progresso.

Navy All Set

So far as the navy was concerned, such instruction was not necessary. One division of the Atlantic fleet is already in eastern Mexican waters with headquarters in Vera Cruz. Another is steaming south being today off the South Carolina coast. A division of the Pacific squadron is within striking distance of the west coast of Mexico. And the reserve vessels of that squadron only need the wireless signal to steam to join them.

President Wilson has positively decided that Huertaism must be eliminated in Mexico. He and his advisers have finally agreed that the existing conditions south of the Rio Grande must immediately be remedied.

The pressure from outside to end the fighting in Mexico is becoming intolerable. In Mexico City the members of the diplomatic corps have quietly informed their home governments that they see no hope for permanent peace unless this government uses force. This information is in possession of the administration here. The president is for the first time seriously considering this opinion.

John Lind, special envoy of this government, is to make one final effort to deal with Huerta. How this will be managed is known only to the president and Secretary Bryan. It is likely that he will renew the suggestion that an armistice be declared throughout all Mexico and a general election be held, safeguarded by the civil authorities. Meanwhile this government will expect the European powers to uphold its policy.

If the plan fails, the president will decide whether to use the armed forces of the government to restore order in Mexico or to recognize the Carranzaites as a defacto force and permit them to get arms and ammunition in this country. The latter plan will hardly satisfy the foreign powers as it would necessarily involve further fighting and a general renewal of hostilities throughout the entire republic.

It is understood that there already have been some exchanges on

THE TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

Miranda Goes Fishing

By HARMONY WELLER

Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

When Miranda's father had taunted her with fickleness of purpose she had flushed more or less guiltily. Her mind, she realized, was much like that of a butterfly, flitting about from one interest to another.

In the present instance Miranda did not know exactly wherein lay the foundation of her father's wrath. Was he perhaps referring to the fact that she had grown tired of Jimmy Dale, or was it that he fumed because of her recent unseting of his favorite hobby—fishing?

"You could not sit in a boat long enough to catch a minnow!" Her father jeered at her, only half serious.

For no reason accountable, Miranda found herself irritated. Perhaps she remembered that Jimmy Dale had taunted her also with fickleness.

"I will bet you that I pull a bigger fish than you do out of the lake before we leave camp!" she flashed back at her father. There was the glimmer of a smile in her mutinous eyes and a flush on her cheeks.

"Ho! Ho! A little peevish about it, are you?" laughed her father. 'You no sooner drop anchor for a good day's fishing than you are ready to turn back."

"Wait and see!" Miranda affirmed stoutly. "You will be so jealous of my catch that you will fish all night to equal it." Miranda's piquant face for the moment reflected a stubborn desire to outwit her father's as well as Jimmy Dale's taunting spirit. She would show them for once that she was capable of steady purpose.

In the afternoon, when fish were supposed to be most susceptible to fishermen's guilt, Miranda donned sunbonnet and gingham dress and went forth with rods and bait. There was more than a little defiance in her swing and the manner in which she rowed her small craft into the middle of the lake. Already, in her innermost heart, she regretted her hasty wager. So far Miranda had managed to preserve her delicate complexion from the ravages of sun and wind.

'Now I shall become freckled, burned and weatherbeaten," she sighed and gave a vicious pull at the oars. "My neck will look like all other leathery necks at the dances this winter. I simply will not go to them—that's all!"

Miranda dropped her small anchor with a splash that would have frightened the most stoical of fish, and with another sigh for the ruination of her complexion prepared her tackle for the day's sport in the hot sun.

She was sitting gloomily watching her bobber with unseeing eyes when she heard the soft swish of oars. Miranda glanced over her gingham-clad shoulder.

A bronze Apollo with eyes that gleamed like turquoise beneath the brim of a disreputable soft hat was dropping anchor within ten feet of Miranda's own boat. Instinct warned her that this new angler on the lake would fish; in other words he seemed not to notice anything save his own particular business.

Miranda was slightly irritated that one of the opposite sex should journey near her domain, yet fail to observe the ruler. In nearly all cases men looked once at least at Miranda. It was neither the copper of her hair or the deep violet of her eyes that caught the masculine glance.

Perhaps the stranger was indifferent to feminine charm; perhaps Miranda forgot that her attractions, as many as the eye could see, consisted of a huge sunbonnet, a gingham dress and a great length of drooping fishing rod.

She erected her rod suddenly and felt much molified. After all, fishing under the present circumstances would prove at least interesting. She even went so far as to disregard her complexion and to forgive her father's taunts about fickleness.

Moments stole by and over the lake the stillness of a dream held sway. An occasional fish, lured by proper bait, found its way into either Miranda's basket or that of the man.

It was long after sundown that she finally pulled up her anchor and rowed toward camp. Miranda watched the stranger in his boat as she drew away, but he seemed not to have known she was there.

"Would he be there the following day?" was the question uppermost in the girl's mind as she fell asleep. "Fishing, after all, is healthful," she decided when she awoke to another day.

Her father had gone for a few days to a neighboring camp to hunt with friends for small game. Miranda made up her mind to go fishing early. A delicate tan had already crept over her fair skin and her nose revealtd many tiny freckles. The girl only laughed at her reflection and ran out to her boat with two great braids of copper hair exposed to the sun and wind.

She did not know whether she waited impatiently for the nibble of the big fish she had determined to catch or for the man who had failed to look at her. When he rounded a curve of the lake Miranda knew which it had been.

In this way days flew swiftly into a week. Miranda had entirely forgotten her complexion and sat for hours with the sunbonnet hanging down her back. Apparently her mind had centered on fishing.

The day the big fish snapped her bait was a never-to-be-forgotten one in the memory of Miranda and the bronze Apollo.

Instead of the fish taking the bait on her pole line it had chosen the morsel on one of her drop lines, and when Miranda lifted the great weight at the side of her boat it was either the excitement of sport or the weight of the game that sent Miranda suddenly into the water.

She had not screamed, nor had she so much as seemed frightened at the unexpected bath, but the stranger had leaped swiftly in after her and carried her to his own boat and put her safely in it. When he had climbed in he looked at her with a laugh in his eyes.

"You should never go fishing in a round bottom boat—a tub like this is far safer."

Miranda threw the wet hair from her face and laughed. "Evidently!" she admitted and glanced at her overturned boat. "Do you suppose my fish is still on the hook?" she asked.

"We will tow your boat to camp," the man said and picked up the oars. After a few moments Miranda spoke again. They were rowing laboriously shoreward towing her boat behind them. She felt curiously shy about speaking and wondered at her unusual timidity.

"If there is a fish weighing over five pounds on my line I won't have to fish any more," she told him.

"I know," said the man. He looked at her with a queer light in his blue eyes. Miranda felt peculiarly warmed, even though her garments were dripping cold lake water. "Your father told me all about it. He even commissioned me to fish near you so that I might be on hand when anything like today's events happened." He looked again at Miranda and this time her eyes drooped.

"Papa is very thoughtful," she found voice to tell him.

They had reached the shore and the man leaped out. We waded first alongside Miranda's boat and felt the dropline.

"He is here all right," he cried out and held up a great shining fish, "and he has swallowed hook, line and bobber!"

"We will go fishing again tomorrow," exclaimed Miranda from her new found happiness, that was also the bronze's Apollo's.

"Tomorrow and the next day and the next," he added and helped the sunburned, freckled and no longer fickle Miranda from her boat.

THAT IS, something is wrong with baby, but we can't tell just what it is. All mothers recognize the term by the lassitude, weakness, loss of appetite, inclination to sleep, heavy breathing, and lack of interest shown by baby. These are the symptoms of sickness. It may be fever, congestion, worms, croup, diphtheria, or scarlatina. Do not lose a minute. Give the child Castoria. Daddy's Bedtime Story— Jack Frost Seems to Like Late Apples

"THERE, now," said daddy; "we are going to have Jack Frost around here pretty soon."

"Dinah said there would be frost tonight," Evelyn remarked.

"Ugh! How does she know?" grumbled Jack. He had had a skirmish with Dinah before coming upstairs and was cross with her.

"I have no doubt Jack Frost would like to make us a visit," daddy said. "He would have a chance to nip the chrysanthemums in the garden, the cabbages out there by the barn and get a bite at those Baldwin apples that hang on our late apple tree.

"Once upon a time there was a lovely big tree of ripe red apples that fairly made Jack's teeth water. He did want a bite so much.

"Jack began teasing and teasing old Mother Nature to let him go out some night and have a feast, but she kept saying no until he got tired and promised himself that the first chance he got he would slip off without asking leave.

"The first night he sneaked out he did not notice that Mother Nature was watching him.

"Up in the sky she was gathering her soft cloud blankets together, and before Jack could do any harm she had dropped them down till they covered the fields and orchards snugly like a blanket.

"Of course Jack was very cross, but he couldn't say a word, because, you see, he had been told not to go out until he was allowed.

"'I'll get 'em yet,' he grumbled. So one night he slipped out again.

"This time Mother Nature had no clouds handy, but she called up the gentle south wind and told it to blow gently so that Jack Frost would be blown along and not have a chance to stop long enough to nip the plants. The little south wind giggled and started out, meaning to have all the fun it could with naughty Jack.

"The wind gave Jack a merry chase, and he came home angry and tired. 'It just seems I never can have anything I want!' he complained.

"Jack tried it again, but this time the farmer had built fires in the orchard so that he could not get near the trees.

"But a few evenings later Mother Nature said to him:

"'Now, Jack, you may go out if you like.' So Jack started. He slowly drew away from the plants and stones all the heat that was in them. Then the mist in the air was chilled so that it covered them with drops of dew. After that Jack Frost went to work. In the morning the trees and grass were covered with white frost. Luckily there were only a few apples left on the tree, but they were enough to satisfy Jack Frost for that time."

THE LATEST TRIBUTE TO WISCONSIN'S UNIVERSITY

While men in this state, actuated largely by political motives, have been attacking the state university, and belittling its work and deploring its expense, the testimony of outsiders as to the efficacy of the university has been piling up until it is becoming cumulative. It has won the approbation of all the educators of Europe who have visited this country, studying our institutions. It has been praised as the greatest of the great universities by former Ambassador Bryce of England, and has won encomiums from the hostile Theodore Roosevelt. Philadelphia's city officials have visited it and gone back, freely praising it, to remodel that city's government upon its dicta, and it gave Ohio its new constitution.

But that the prophet may have honor in his own country, we submit to our readers today the testimony of Senator Walter I. Manny, president of the Illinois senate, who following a junket of an Illinois senate committee to Madison to study "progressive Wisconsin," gave The Record-Herald the following interview:

"That trip was a revelation to me. Before we went I was a little dubious about taking the committee up to Madison. I had a vague impression despite all I had read and heard of the 'Wisconsin idea' that about all we would see would be a roomful of books and a rusty looking professor or two poring over the constitution and the law books in an atmosphere redolent of calf bindings and musty law tomes, while here and there in the room might be scattered a few clerks, political clerks, thoughtfully pondering over the statistical information in the green sheet sporting pages. Isn't that the natural concept anyone might form on seeing the word 'department' in juxtaposition to the word 'legislative?'

"I hadn't been in Madison more than a few minutes before I discovered how erroneous such an impression was. We got to the hotel and I called up Dr. Charles McCarthy on the telephone. As you know, he is chief of the legislative reference department. I asked for an appointment. 'Come right over,' said Dr. McCarthy. So we went over. A wonderful man, a wonderful department.

* * *

"It isn't a reference bureau that he is running. Nothing like it in the ordinary sense of the term.

"What McCarthy is running is a thought factory, a machine-shop for ideas.

"The legislative reference department is nothing less than a legislative laboratory.

"When you get into the atmosphere you begin to discover the secret of Wisconsin's progressivism. Back of it is the university with its idealism and its advanced theories; then comes Dr. McCarthy, the miller who keeps feeding these ideas into the legislature. Thus the state government is under the constant stimulation of a mighty intellectual force.

"It was an inspiration to us, that visit. If I had my way I'd send every member of the Illinois legislature up to Madison just to get into the spirit that animates Wisconsin. It would connect them up with the dynamo and speed them up. You know how it is with most men. They come out of college with lofty ideals, and after they have been working for ten or twenty years they find their idealism somewhat faded. Up in Madison, however, they keep idealism shining brightly; public service instead of politics seems to be their actuating motive. The close contact with the university is the secret.

"Think of McCarthy and his idealism. He made a trip abroad to study certain conditions and paid his own way and didn't put in a bill for expenses. Corporations have offered him large salaries to enter their employment, but he turns them all down and sticks to his job as head of the reference department.

"I asked him whether offers of larger emolument held no temptation, and he said, 'My soul is in my work; I love every hill and valley in Wisconsin; my mission is here.'

"When a man is filled with idealism like that, what can you expect than to see him a real influence?

* * *

"Efficiency in government is the great thing to be developed in Illinois. Up in Wisconsin they have investigated matters that we haven't begun to think about yet. For years I have been trying to get a real legislative reference department for Illinois, and I believe that it is coming. The provision the last legislature made is only a starter.

"We don't require high salaried men to run it. Why, Dr. McCarthy said, 'If you want to start one up, I can send you two first-class, competent men who won't take more than $500 a year for salary.'

"'Five hundred a year!' I echoed in astonishment.

"'Yes,' he said, 'they will be glad to do it for that. They will be getting credit at the university for the work done, and they will be getting the experience and above all they will be accomplishing something worth while, which is the main thing.'

"Think of the profound thinkers at the University of Illinois we might impress into service, men like Dean Kinley and Professor Fairlie. All they want is a chance and a little elbow room, and they would be doing for Illinois what Dr. McCarthy and his colleagues are doing for Wisconsin.

"We are living in the greatest era in the world's history. More is going to be accomplished within the next decade than in the last generation. All the changes and reforms will affect every inhabitant of the United States, for they will affect conditions of living, for after all the cost of decent living is the question at bottom of most of our social, economic and industrial reforms, and the master key to it all will be efficiency in government."

Secretary Garrison has stopped the practice of lending war department property, but it is suspected that his wife occasionally falls short of coffee and has to borrow of the next door neighbors.

The congressmen's contribution of $5 each for a wedding present for Jessie Wilson will be very welcome, if they don't mark the gift so it can't be exchanged.

A bill is introduced for a $500,000 statue of Napoleon Bonaparte, but no mention is made of that other world conqueror, now also a Frenchman, Jack Johnson.

The currency legislation will never be satisfactory as long as you have to put up security before getting a loan.

Congress does not care how many bills the president returns unsigned provided he does not veto the desired appointments.

There is a growing feeling that President Huerta is playing a pretty large game for a seven spot high.

One Would Do

Of the culprits haled before a police magistrate one Monday morning there was one—an Irishman—who had caused no end of trouble to the police the Saturday night preceding.

The magistrate regarded the prisoner with mingled curiosity and indignation.

"So you're the man that gave the officers so much trouble?" the magistrate asked. "I understand that it took seven policemen to lock you up."

"Yis, your honor," responded the Celt, with a broad grin, "but it would take only wan to let me out."

A Woman's Way

"I have just had an argument with a lady," said youthful Algernon with an air of gentle sadness.

"Indeed," said his grandfather. "Who was the lady?"

"Mother," said Algernon.

"And what was the argument over?"

"Over mother's knee," said the young hopeful, grimly.

The Steerage "Crew"

Mrs. Smith was on her first ocean voyage.

"What's that down there?" she asked of the captain.

"That's the steerage, madam," he replied.

"Really!" exclaimed the woman, in surprise. "And does it take all those people to make the boat go straight?"

Speaking from Experience

A very old Irishman one day astonished a friend by announcing that he was about to get married.

"Married!" exclaimed his friend. "An old man like you!"

"Well, ye see," the old man explained, "it's just because I'm gettin' an auld bhoy now. 'Tis a foine thing, Pat, to have a wife near ye to close the eyes of ye whin ye come to the end."

"Arrah, now, ye ould fule!" exclaimed Pat, "don't be so foolish. What do ye know about it? Close yer eyes, indade. I've had a couple o' thim, an' faith they both of them opened mine."

His Alibi

"And you say that you are innocent of the charge of stealing a rooster from Mr. Jones?" asked an Arkansas judge of a meek looking prisoner.

"Yes, sair, and I can prove it."

"How can you prove it?"

"I can prove that I didn't steal Mr. Jones' rooster, judge, because I stole two hens from Mr. Graston the same night, and Jones lives five miles from Graston's."

"The proof is conclusive," said the judge. "Discharge the prisoner."—National Food Magazine.

A Romance of Extraordinary Distinction

The Marshal

"Young Allen Fitzhugh has just been here," he began, and his daughter knew from the tone that something was wrong.

"Yes. I saw him. He and Harry have ridden to Carnifax."

"Those lads talk great nonsense," growled the colonel.

"Yes," Lucy agreed. "I like to hear them."

"I don't." With that the colonel brought his fist down on his chair arm, and joggled the beautiful julep and spilled some of it on his white linen trousers. Lucy laughed. The colonel's temper was not improved.

"Pernicious nonsense they talk. About this absurd young Chevalier, as they call him—though where he got his title I can not guess."

"What about the Chevalier?" Lucy's blue eyes were serious.

"Oh, about his virtues and his charms," the colonel grumbled vaguely. "And about his undoubted right to have been captain of the troop, and his fine spirit in refusing. A pest! As if he dared accept! As if we Virginians would see a common peasant set over our children."

There was a complete silence on the broad shady gallery for a moment. The breeze rustled in the live-oak trees and went on beyond as if light-footed ladies in silk petticoats had slipped past. Out at the cabins one heard two negro women singing in rich voices:

"Nellie was a lady—
Last night she died."

The women sang far away. Bees hummed in the garden. The colonel sipped his mint-julep.

Then Lucy's soft falling voice spoke very clearly. "I think the boys are right, father. I agree with them that the Chevalier showed a fine spirit."

The colonel turned angrily. "You don't understand what you are talking about," he shot at her peevishly. "I am astonished at you, Lucy! You—a lady—a Hampton, to encourage this man of low birth who has worked his way into our society!"

But Lucy answered him quite easily, quite firmly. "You know you don't believe that, father. You know he has not 'worked his way' among us, but that everybody has been delighted to welcome him in. Why, you like him, father—you are as friendly to him as any one when he comes here."

The colonel looked worried. "Oh—friendly—of course. In my own house. And besides, society has accepted him; he is a manner of celebrity; I do not wish to be thought bearish. But it is a dangerous precedent. I do not like it. The next thing the fellow might wish to marry one of our southern ladies!"

Once again one heard the bees hum, and the colored women singing, and the breeze in the trees, and then Lucy's low decided voice spoke clearly. "I think it would be a very fortunate woman whom the Chevalier might wish to marry," she said.

CHAPTER XJVII.

Hero Worship.

It had come about that Lucy Hampton was a scholar of Francois. The colonel, lamenting on a day that there were no capable teachers of French in the neighborhood, that Lucy's schoolgirl command of the language was fast disappearing, and an accomplishment so vital to a lady was likely soon to be lost—this saga of regret being sung by the colonel at the dinner-table, Francois had offered to teach mademoiselle his mother tongue. And the colonel had accepted the offer.

"If you are not too busy, Chevalier. And I suppose your—ah—accent is entirely good? One can not be too careful, you know. At least, we shall not quarrel about the terms, for whatever money you think right to ask I shall be ready to pay," and the colonel felt himself a man of the world and extremely generous.

"Father!" Lucy cried quickly.

Francois' eyes were on his plate but they swept up with their wide brown gaze full on the colonel's face. "I am not too busy, Monsieur the Colonel. As for my accent—I am but a peasant, as Monsieur knows, but yet I am instructed. I was for years at Saint-Cyr, the great military school of France. I believe my accent is right. As for money"—a quick motion, all French, spoke a whole sentence. "If Monsieur insists on that—that must finish it. To me it would be impossible to take money for the pleasure of teaching mademoiselle." He flashed at Lucy a smile all gentleness, and Lucy's eyes, waiting for that smile, met his shyly.

The colonel blustered a bit, but the lessons were arranged as Francois wished, and twice a week throughout the winter he rode over from Carnifax to give them. And little by little he came to know the small mistress of the manor as few had known her. People thought Lucy Hampton too serious and staid for a young girl; no one realized that her mother being dead and her father such as he was, the clear-headed little person had begun at ten or twelve years old to know that she must make her own decisions, and many of her father's also. At fourteen she had taken the keys and the responsibility of the house, and now, at sixteen, she was in reality the head of the whole great plantation. The colonel, who would have been most indignant to be told so, leaned on her in every detail, and itwas she who planned and decided and often executed the government of the little kingdom.

Those who think of southern ladies of the old regime as idle do not understand what their life was. The position of mayor of a city would approach idleness as nearly. It was for the woman at the head of such a place to guide the household work of a great number of servants; to train new servants as they were added to the corps; to manage the commissariat for all this army; to see that the fruits of one season were cooked and made into the sweets and pickles and drinks of another; to look after the clothing of hundreds of negroes on the plantation; cutting and arranging with her own hands. Beyond this, to the mind of a conscientious southern woman, such as was young Lucy Hampton, the souls of her slaves were her charge as well as their bodies. As she stood slim and fair and young, in the great, shadowy, sunshot hall of Roanoke House, and read and explained the Bible or led the singing, while all the earnest, reverent, black faces turned to her trustingly, it was a great power to be given into such hands, and she felt it so. In addition to all this a lady of Virginia must entertain and go into society and be a grande dame as well as, if it so happened, a devoted wife and mother.

Dear Grown-up Readers In Search of Your Youth,— Here is a book that is written for you

Delicious, irresistible, droll—'twould beggar the "big unabridged" to describe the antics, the mischief, the uncanny machinations, the delight of those angelic little imps, those impish little angels—"The Terrible Twins." Even the beloved Mark himself must look down from heaven, and if he could would grow jealous, but smiles instead.

We might say in passing, Dear Grown-up, that the book has a plot with as many surprises as a porcupine has quills, that the Twins have a mother whose other name is charm, with a host of lovers—but the Twins are the real dei ex machina after all.

The book is a passport to the dear land of Boyhood, charter to the glorious Sea of Mysterious Adventure. 'Twill give you the freedom of Care-free City—'twill charm back your lost youth again.

So don't linger—don't delay, but to-day adopt

THE SLIDES AT CULEBRA

Sufficient to Cause Alarm, but Had Been Anticipated, So Engineers Were Fully Prepared

By WILLIS J. ABBOTT, Author of "Panama and the Canal in Picture and Prose"

Copyright, 1913, Syndicate Publishing Co., New York. All rights reserved.

If the Capital Park at Washington with the National Capitol cresting it, should suddenly begin to move down into Pennsylvania Avenue at a rate of about three feet a day, the authorities of the city would naturally feel some degree of anoyance. And if the smooth and level asphalt of that historic thoroughfare should over night, rise up in the air 18 feet in spots, those responsible for traffic might reasonably be somewhat worried.

Such a phenomenon would be not so startling in mere magnitude as the "slides" which have added so greatly to the work of the engineers on the Canal, and have made tourists, wise with the ripe fruits of five days' observation, wag their heads knowingly when Colonel Goethals calmly repeats his assertions that the water will soon be turned in.

If these slides were an entirely new and unexpected phenomenon for which no allowance had been made in the estimates of the canal builders, they would justify the apprehension they have awakened in the non-professional mind. But the slides were in fact anticipated. Even during the preliminary scratching of the Isthmian backbone by the French they occurred, and the American engineers knew precisely what to expect. The first slide occurred during our work on the Isthmus in 1905; the others have only been bigger because the canal being dug deeper has weakened the bases of hills along its banks. All the same, the proportions of the slides are terrifying, and the chief geologist declares that they will not cease until the angle of the canal bank becomes so gentle that gravity will not pull the crest down.

The slides are of two sorts. The simpler is a mere swift rush of all the loose surface dirt, sand, gravel and stone down the surface of the bank. These gravity slides, though troublesome, present no new problems. To stop them it is necessary only to carry the crest of the bank further back so that the angle will be less steep. But the great, troublesome slides are those caused by the pressure of the hill-top on its undermined and weakened base. Once started, the whole mass, acres in extent, moves slowly toward the cavity of the Canal, three feet a day being its swiftest recorded progress. At Culebra the slides compelled the moving of a large part of the town away from the edge of the cut, lest it be swept into the gorge.

As the slide moves slowly downward, its colossal weight applied at points where nature had made no provision for it, forces the earth upward at the point where it can offer the least resistance, namely the bed of the Canal. The upheaval of the canal bed and the occasional outpourings of steam have led at times to exaggerated reports in the newspapers of volcanic action being one of the new problems with which the Canal builders had to grapple.

At one time it was the policy of the Commission to keep the public in the dark concerning these apparently serious obstacles to the progress of the work. The Canal Zone is fairly haunted by men able to arouse the attention of the public. Since I have been here every ship brings congressmen, magazine writers and newspaper men. Anything that savors of secrecy instantly arouses their interest, and if their conclusions are erroneous it is the fault mainly of those who seek to obscure the facts. Probably it was largely because of the earlier efforts of the Commission to hush the matter up that the impression spread in the United States that the slides would indefinitely delay the conclusion of the work even if they were not wholly fatal to it.

The Commission now is perfectly frank The story told about the extent of the slides is sufficiently alarming, but the calmness with which they are meeting the situation is reassuring.

Nobody with knowledge anticipates that the slides will interfere with Colonel Goethals' determination to put a ship through the canal on time. The Canal is so wide at the Cut that the biggest slide has never obstructed more than one-third of its width, so that a sufficient channel for the passage of ships can easily be buoyed off in the free water while the dredges are working to remove the obstruction.

The dirt can not always slide in faster than it is carried out, for in time there will be no dirt left to slide. And so undismayed and intent upon success, the whole force from Colonel Goethals to the youngest engineer moved on Culebra and the doom of that stubborn block to progress was soon sealed.

Rheumatism

A Home Cure Given by One Who Had It

In the spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally, I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bedridden with Rheumatism, and it effected a cure in every case.

I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. After you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of curing your Rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when positive relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.

TWO DIE WHEN TRAIN LEAPS TRACK

SPOKANE, Wash., Oct. 30.—Engineer B. C. Miller and Fireman G. J. Davis, both of this city, were killed when the engine of Great Northern passenger train No. 1, westbound, toppled over a trestle fifty feet high after running into the rear end of a work train last night at Waukee, the junction point of the St. Paul and the Spokane, Portland & Seattle railroads, sixty miles southwest of here. No passengers were hurt.

TRAIN TRAINMEN IN NEW BLOCK SYSTEM

Milwaukee Road Employes Learn How to Operate New Million Dollar Plan

All trainmen and enginemen on the Milwaukee are being examined at short intervals by Trainmaster D. E. Rossiter of the La Crosse division of the road in the interpretation and use of the semaphore block system which is being installed on the Milwaukee between Chicago and Minneapolis. The system will be open probably shortly after the first of the year.

The block system was started about a year ago, and has been steadily worked on all summer. According to indirect information, the cost of the project to the road will aggregate about $1,000,000. Semaphores have been installed on the River division and are ready for use. The La Crosse division is nearly finished. Parts of the system will be experimented with, although they will not be used until the entire system between Chicago and Minneapolis has been completed.

Similar safety block systems have been installed on several of the larger roads of the country. That they have been the means of saving life and in preventing train wrecks has been proven on the railroads on which they have been used.

HIGGINS IS BACK FROM TRIP SOUTH

C. F. Higgins, third trick Milwaukee railroad telegraph operator, returned to the city this morning from a trip through the southern states, covering several thousands of miles. He was accompanied by Patrick Keaveney, clerk in the north side offices of the Milwaukee. Higgins joins Keaveney in a statement to the effect that they had the time of their lives.

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat less meat if you feel Backache or have Bladder trouble.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.—Agent, Chas. Beyschlag, Druggist, 503 Main street.

PUBLIC DEBATE

Dear Editor:

In Tuesday night's issue of The Tribune you published in your editorials an article from Collier's protesting against the spectacle selling concession at the Pan-American exposition, and I wish, in praise of the concession committee and the Pan-American exposition, to advise you that I have just received a telegram from the president of our American Association of Opticians, which reads as follows: "The fight is over. We have won. Committee decided unanimously against concession. Boost for the Pan-American. (Signed) Albert Meyer."

Collier's is to be commended for their aid in our fight against this graft. The sum of $60,000 had been offered for this concession, and the American Optical association and its officers have been busy obtaining evidence of spectacle selling graft at past expositions, and have had to submit this to prove our claim of graft and incompetency on the part of the "spectacle sellers."

It was this kind of evidence that prompted Collier's to so vigorously fight the evil. It was the publicity they gave to the facts, that brought it prominently to the attenion of many of our prominent and influential men in the country, who then made personal protests. However, we are glad to have won the fight, because it means much to optometry and helps to put the profession above graft and incompetency.

It might be of interest to your readers to know that the University of Minnesota has just added a course in optics to their college, under Professor John Zeleny, who is a very capable man.

This makes the second university in this country to add a course in optometry to their college, Columbia university of New York being the first. Their course requires two years and is separate from the medical department.

H. CLAY EVENSON.

Editor La Crosse Tribune:

The writer is informed by people who claim to know that the fire in the marshes north of the city Saturday evening was started by hunters, and that had it not been for the rain coming just at the time it did this fire would have destroyed hundreds of tons of hay.

This is the worst kind of negligence on the part of hunters or any others who may be moving about the fields or marshes for any purpose.

Possibly the ones guilty of this had no intention of the fire gaining such headway, but the lighting of fires or otherwise damaging property should not be tolerated for a moment by the hunters who wish to have the privilege of hunting on other people's property. It would be to their advantage to try to bring to justice all who wilfully or even carelessly destroys other people's property.

The La Crosse County Hunting and Fishing association has a standing offer of five dollars reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any one damaging fence or other property.

We want to do all in our power to stop this kind of thing and ask the co-operation of everyone to this end.

Thanking you for space in your valuable columns for the above letter, I am, A. T. RASMUSSEN, President.

SPUD RUSH OVER WORK TRAINS BACK

Sudden End of Heavy Potato Shipments Allows Crews to Get Back on Job

Due to a sudden discontinuance of the potato rush from the west over the Burlington railroad, local officials have announced to trainmen that on Monday, the thirty-five or forty worktrains that were recently laid off will be put back to work.

The trains were used all summer in the double track work that is being done between Savanna, Ill., and St. Paul.

With the exception of about twenty-five miles, the road has been double tracked between this city and Savanna. Four trains will be rushed to this point to hasten the completion of the work.

Due to one of the most sudden rushes the Burlington has ever seen, the trains were taken off. The road could not obtain enough train crews to operate their regular freight trains and the work trains in the bargain.

The building of the second track has been the hardest problem was La Crosse and Savanna, engineers state, as they have been compelled to cut away a great many small hills in order to eliminate curves. The elimination of these dangerous pieces of track was one of the chief objects in doing the work to the south of this point.

MEN AT WORK ON NORTH IOWA PIKE

M'GREGOR, Iowa, Oct. 30.—Contractor A. C. Boyle has a large force of men at work on the North Iowa pike and a good beginning in the construction of a mile and a quarter of macadam highway from the western limits of McGregor has been made. The building of culverts to handle the drainage problem was the first task. Four huge cement culverts with wide parapets have been put in ranging in length from 50 to 25 feet and in width and depth from 3x3 to 2x2. A retaining wall of concrete 218 feet long and 10 feet high is now in course of construction along one part of the grade where it threatens to wash. The wall reaches four feet below the bed of the ditch. Rock from the ditch is being crushed in a steam crusher for the concrete.

Make This and Try It for Coughs

This Home-Made Remedy has no Equal for Prompt Results.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle; then add the Sugar Syrup. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

This simple remedy takes hold of a cough more quickly than anything else you ever used. Usually conquers an ordinary cough inside of 24 hours. Splendid, too, for whooping cough, spasmodic croup and bronchitis. It stimulates the appetite and is slightly laxative, which helps end a cough.

This makes more and better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50. It keeps perfectly and tastes pleasant.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in guaiacol and other natural pine elements which are so healing to the membranes. Other preparations will not work in this plan.

Making cough syrup with Pinex and sugar syrup (or strained honey) has proven so popular throughout the United States and Canada that it is often imitated. But the old, successful mixture has never been equaled.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

SINGS WAY TO FAME

LUCIA LA COSTA LONG HAD AMBITION TO CAPTURE LAURELS WITH HER VOICE

"Singing her way to fame," was the slogan by which a few years ago a young American singer was heralded into the public.

Ever since when a young girl of eight years she was chosen to take the leading role in a fairy operetta, which she succeeded in playing so well that she created almost a furore among her auditors, Lucia Lacosta cherished the intention of singing her way to fame.

From the beginning she was a serious student sparing no pains or effort in the pursuit of her ambition and her aims.

Sooner than perhaps the aspirant dared hope or dream, that wily creature "Fame" came knocking at La costa's door.

Young, unaffected and appealing, with a voice as brilliant, sparkling and scintillating as the jewels of a queen's tiara, resonant, clear, telling, yet full of warmth and color, and such a delightful personality that to see her is to love her, it is litle wonder that Lacosta succeeded so rapidly in carrying out her life dream.

Her gifts are so varied, her training so complete and her repertoire so extensive, that she is at all times equal to any demand made upon her from concert to opera.

In the coming song recitals that this increasingly popular soprano will give in the Masonic temple on November 4, 5 and 6, under the auspices of Wilson Colwell Relief corps No. 2, there will be something of charm and inspiration for all who attend. Added interest and variety will be afforded by the playing of Miss Woodbury, violinist, and Miss Lane, pianist.

MACHINE EXPLODES PHYSICIAN KILLED

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 30.—When a new sterilizing machine which he was testing, exploded, Dr. Oscar Chrysler, head surgeon at the National Soldiers' Home, was killed and Henry Schimmel, chief plumber, and Clarence Lynn, chief druggist, were severely injured Wednesday afternoon by the force of the explosion and escaping steam.

It is not known what caused the machine to explode, but was probably by the failure of the safety valve to work. It was set to let the steam escape at seventeen pounds pressure. The gauge registered seventeen pounds immediately before the explosion, but the steam was not escaping through the valve.

Just before the explosion occurred, Dr. Chrysler noticed steam escaping from the door on the boiler and stepped forward to tighten a clamp. There were sixteen clamps on the door and the force of the steam tore them loose as easy as if they were strings. Two of the clamps, which eighed about two pounds each, struck Dr. Chrysler in the head, throwing him across the room.

TAX OF $100,000 FROM GATES ESTATE

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 30.—The state of Minnesota probably will collect an inheritance tax of from $75,000 to $100,000 from the estate of Charles G. Gates. This estimate is based on the report that Gates was worth approximately $3,000.

It is understood most of the Gates wealth is represented by stocks and bonds and the value of these is taxable by the state in which he had residence. It was stated today that the home which Gates was building in Minneapolis would prove the contention of the attorney general that Gates was a bonafide resident of Minnesota.

FORCES READY FOR ACTIVE SERVICE IN MEXICAN REPUBLIC

this particular subject between this country and representatives of the European powers. The president has a complete outline of his entire plan prepared. He was going to submit it to a meeting of the cabinet tomorrow, but finally decided today to take no action until next week.

The delay is due to a desire to see what the new Mexican congress will do. That body meets in Mexico City Saturday. Only a fraction of the states will be represented. After organization congress will canvass the results of last Sunday's election. It is expected that all of the votes cast for Huerta will be declared null and void. This, too, despite the understanding that he received a majority of the votes cast. The votes for his running mate, General Blanquet, candidate for vice president, will however, probably be counted. If he is proclaimed legally elected vice president, Huerta is expected to turn over to him the direction of the country's affairs and to retire to his old position as head of the army.

U. S. Will Act

If this course is followed, this country will act at once. Blanquet will be told flatly that he will not be recognized as acting president. In doing so, the president will define his new policy. This may involve armed intervention.

Today a new complication arose. Rear Admiral Fletcher wirelessed from the Louisiana that he could not send Gen. Diaz north on an American merchant vessel. This is because the vessels steaming north from Vera Cruz will stop at Tampico. Huerta controls that city, and it would be very easy for his soldiers to take Diaz off. Fletcher says he cannot send Diaz north on a warship and asked advice. Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, John Bassett Moore, counsellor of the state department and President Wilson conferred on the matter. A decision was reached but withheld for the present.

Stories of movements of cavalry on the Mexican border started a report today that soldiers were being rushed aboard transports at Galveston for transfer to Vera Cruz. This was promptly denied and it was stated that the movements were routine in character and had been ordered a month ago.

To Make Blanquet President

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 30.—No definite returns of the election were available today. The natives accept the belief that the new congress will declare the Huerta-Blanquet ticket elected, and thereupon General Aureliano Blanquet will become president, having been elected vice president and Gen. Huerta being constitutionally barred. It is believed Huerta then would become Blanquet's war minister and would be "the power behind the throne."

The foreign diplomats are now openly at logger-heads. They have been holding daily meetings for more than a week, seeking to formulate some plan for solving the Mexican problem to submit to their respective governments. Sir Lionel Carden, the British minister, is the stumbling block in their way. He does not agree with the proposals of any of the others, and they do not agree with his ideas.

Diaz Like Prisoner

VERA CRUZ, Oct. 30.—John Lind, special American envoy, today began work on his report of the Mexican election which he will forward to Washington for President Wilson's information. It may have some bearing on the president's forthcoming statement. Mexicans chuckled today when they learned that General Felix Diaz is not an honored guest aboard the American flagship Louisiana, but is treated much like a prisoner. Diaz is not allowed to receive any visitors without special permission.

Troops Go to Texas

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Oct. 30.—The second squadron of the Fifteenth cavalry, stationed at Fort Leavenworth today, was ordered by the war department to proceed to Fort Huachaca, Arizona, not later than November 7 for duty along the Mexican border.

It is understood that one squadron of the Fifth cavalry is to come from Fort Huachaca to the post here. The departure of these troops from Fort Leavenworth will leave only a detail of 20 men and one officer for police duty, all of the 1,800 troops which formerly were stationed here having gone to Texas.

Hunt Mobilization Camp

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 30.—Southern Pacific officials today admitted that they are seeking 2,000 acres near Long Beach, Cal., which would furnish a suitable site for the mobilization of large forces of troops. The officials are reported to be acting in compliance with the request of the war department to investigate the feasibility of establishing a new presidio near here.

EXPECT MILITIA TO CLASH WITH MINERS

Situation at Aguilar in Colorado Coal Fields Is Tense All Through Night

THE MINE BUILDINGS ARE BURNED

Strikers Deny Responsibility but Guards Declare Fire Was Incendiary

TRINIDAD, Col., Oct. 30.—Although a tense situation existed all night at Aguilar, and a clash between coal strikers and militiamen was threatened several times, no trouble had occurred there at an early hour today.

Major Hamrock and a detachment of soldiers were dispatched to the scene last night following reports of guards that they had been attacked by miners and expected another assault.

Burn Mine Tipple

The tipple and outbuildings of the Southwestern mine were burned at Aguilar before daylight Wednesday The strikers denied responsibility, but the guards insisted the fire was incendiary.

The Aguilar postoffice was in one letters were burned and a number of letters were burned. PostmasterSample declared he found charred letters indicating that they had been rifled.

When the troops reached there they disarmed half a dozen guards and ten strikers. Neither offered any resistence. The strikers near there have been bitter in the denunciation of the soldiers and further trouble is feared.

Report Violence

During the night came a report from Delagua, up the canon from Ludlow, that the mine guards had been fired upon by entrenched strikers. A number of other cases of violence were also reported to Adjutant General Chase, but so far as known there have been no casualties.

The general disarmament did not begin until today. The first camp disarmed was Walsenburg, where Colonel Edward Verdeckberg is in command.

Later reports today to Gen. Chase indicated that the danger of further trouble at Aguilar had passed and the militiamen were withdrawn. The troops were able to find only twelve armed strikers at Aguilar and these were disarmed. The other strikers there are said to have buried their rifles and ammunition.

Strikers from the Ludlow tent colony this afternoon fired on mine guards at Tobasco, in defiance of strike leaders' orders. There were no known casualties.

ALLEGED CHECK PASSER ARRESTED

Man Supposed to Be Person Who Victimized the American House Is Identified

A man giving his name to the police as Jack McDonald, was arrested late last night by Patrolman Wendling on suspicion of being the man who passed bad checks yesterday on John Timp, proprietor of the American house, and on the Kelly & Gordon saloon on south Third street. The man was identified this morning by both parties as the person who was in their places.

Following an examination by John Webber, chief of police, this morning, McDonald implicated a pal. Detectives McGrath and Fitzsimmons were put on his trail. The police are of the opinion that he left the city on Burlington passenger train 54 at noon today.

The checks passed were for $12, $3 and $2. When No. 54 pulled out the police telephoned to towns and cities south of La Crosse in the endeavor to head him off and arrest him.

ABANDON H. S. HOCKIN

DYNAMITERS ON APPEAL PUT BLAME FOR BLASTS UPON LEADERS OF THE UNION

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Herbert S. Hockin, former secretary-treasurer of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, and branded by the government as the "brains of the dynamite conspiracy" in the Indianapolis trial, was cast overboard by his former comrades today.

Attorney Chester H. Krum of St. Louis, arguing on the appeal of thirty of the men convicted at Indianapolis, labeled Hockin "a dynamiter of the stripe of the McNamara's and Ortie McManigal." He asserted that only Hockin, the McNamaras and McManigal knew of the dynamiting and that the other labor heads convicted at Indianapolis would never have given their consent to perpetrating crime.

Counsel for the appellants expected to conclude their arguments this afternoon, after consuming a day and a half.

REAL DOG SLAYER CAUGHT AT LAST

What the police believe to be the real chicken murder and the perpatrator of the fowl atrocities for which another dog was innocently executed recently, is locked in Cell No. 4 at Central police station.

He is a fine specimen of the spitz breed and up to date the owner has not been located.

He was "nabbed" last night while entering the coop of Mr. George Hayek, 919 Johnson street.

While the police think they can convict the pup of murder their evidence is largely circumstantial. The dog last night had not killed any of the feathered hens.

In the event the murder charge falls flat it is possible he will be tried for burglary in the night time. He entered the coop after chewing off slats.

PLAN WAR TO GAIN WIFE HER SHARE

The Women's Taxpayers' League to Start Fight for Economic Freedom of Wives

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 30.—The Woman's Taxpayers' league, an organization whose aim is the "economic emancipation of married women," and whose members plan to wage an organized campaign to secure equal division of the family income, today came into existence in Detroit. Its officers say it is to be a real economic war—a fight for funds.

Mrs. Clara B. Arthur, prominent club woman who is honorary president of the new organization, today explained the influence which led to the formation of the society.

"There lies back of this organized movement a desire on the part of women to get at the bottom of the domestic troubles disturbing society," said Mrs. Arthur. "Investigation has shown that marital troubles are mainly of an economic nature. As a remedy we believe that if women are placed on a better economic basis, were given a joint title in the home and an independent income they would be more contented. By an educational campaign we will attempt to overcome the economic inequality between the sexes and thereby eliminate probably the greatest cause of divorce."

Membership in the organization is open to all women taxpayers.

SAFETY IS CHEAPER THAN BURYING DEAD

Costs Less to Enforce Railroad Protective Measures Than to Care for Injured

ILLINOIS EXPERT BLAMES PUBLIC

Says People Are Criminally Careless and Responsible for Loss of Life

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—It is cheaper to enforce railroad safety laws than to pick up and bury the railroad's dead and care for their crippled, William Kilpatrick of Illinois declared here today before the National Association of Railway commissioners. He also branded the public as criminally careless and largely responsible for the enormous destruction of life on railroads.

Drawing on experiences of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, Kilpatrick urged all roads to put into use signals to prevent operation of more than one train on a block at once, and use of automatic train control, which, he declared, has been tried successfully. He held that it is vastly more important to take steps to avert collisions and derailments than to provide steel cars to mitigate fatalites. His figures showed that 25,000 children, 36,276 tramps and 120,103 citizens were killed and injured in the last twenty years because America does not enforce railroad trespass laws.

The convention adjourned today.

Government ownership of railroads will be the burning political issue in the United States before the government's railway appraisal is completed, Chairman Clifford Thorne of the Iowa railroad commission today predicted to the association.

Sounding a warning against the proposed five per cent increase in freight rates, he declared the government could buy all the lines, issue three per cent bonds, and then distribute $100,000,000 annually in higher wages without increasing the rates.

"Railroading done in the United States with an eye mainly on the stock market, costs Americans $400,000,000 a year," he declared.

He warned members of the government valuation board that their task constitutes the "greatest stake ever before a human tribunal."

SULZER TO TEST HIS IMPEACHMENT

Verdict of High Court May Be Set Aside as Result of Suit Filed Today

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—A suit to test and perhaps set aside the impeachment of Governor Sulzer by the legislature at Albany today was filed in the United States court. W. H. Moore was named as plaintiff.

The test action took the form of an injunction suit and argument on the motion may be heard by the United States district judges tomorrow. John Leary appeared as counsel for Moore, and he explained that the injunction was sought on the ground that the judges of the court of appeals and the member of the senate had no authority to impeach Sulzer for acts committed prior to his taking office.

Moore's petition sets forth that the state is "ruled by an invisible government dominated by two or three men at most," and that this is in violation of the "federal constitution providing for a republican form of government."

The suit further alleges that millions of dollars voted for the improvement of the state has been appropriated by those who control the "invisible government."

A thorough audit of the books of all state departments is prayed.

LEAVES CAPITAL FOR STATE FIGHTS

National Spellbinders Invade Maryland, Jersey and Bay State Today

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—An exodus of national spell-binders began today. Maryland, New Jersey and Massachusetts were the objective points. These three states are winding up a campaign which for hectic fervor, has seldom been equalled.

Senator Norris, progressive leader of Nebraska, went to Boston to campaign for the regular republican nominees, and especially for August Gardner, the gubernatorial aspirant.

Senator Borah of Idaho is also headed for Massachusetts. He has been trailing Secretary Bryan in New Jersey and answering his arguments there. Today he aids the republican nominees in Maryland, with a speech at Frederick and then rushed to Massachusetts where he, Norris and Senator Weeks will be featured at what is planned to be the biggest meeting of the campaign in Tremont Temple, Boston, Saturday night.

Representatives Campbell of Kansas; Sutherland of West Virginia; French of Idaho; Kelley of Michigan, and Manahan of Minnesota are also explaining the issue in the three states where the fight is on.

President Wilson has refused to make a speech in southern New Jersey. He was invited but sent word that he would not go as his attitude might be misunderstood. Representative Carter Glass, author of the administration currency bill, is representing the president in his home state.

Senator Cummins will wind up the Maryland campaign with a speech in Baltimore on Saturday night.

ASLEEP ON TRACK FARMER IS KILLED

Carl Sladen of Houston Is Run Over When Burlington Box Car Is Shunted on Siding

Carl Sladen, age 32, a farmer of Houston, Minn., was crushed by the wheel of a box car while lying asleep on the sidetrack of the Burlington railroad, ten feet north of Jay street, at 9 o'clock this morning. Death resulted.

Sladen was sleeping with his body against the wheel of an idle car, when the crew of a switch engine ran an empty car into the siding. The sleeping man was but slightly cut, but the car jammed against the center of his body, inflicting internal injuries. The first the crew knew of the accident was when they heard the man call for help.

The police were notified and an ambulance was sent for from the Lutheran hospital. Sladen died on the operating table fifteen minutes after his arrival at the hospital.

Identification was determined by the fact that Sladen was blind in one eye. Attendants at the hospital knew the man. It is thought that he was in the city on business. He has relatives in Houston, who were notified.

NOT "REAL" HUSBAND

KENOSHA, Wis., Oct. 30.—That Fred L. Rogers was not the "real" husband of Martha Alice Rogers, who left her property to him provided the court should decide he was her "real" husband, was the decision Judge Belden made here. Mrs. Rogers died two weeks before her interlocutory decree of divorce became permanent.

GAS ON THE STOMACH

Use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for This Form of Indigestion

It is a poor treatment for stomach trouble that treats the stomach alone. Back of all your lack of appetite, sourness of stomach, belching of gas, nausea, pains after eating, heaviness and lump-like feeling in the stomach, is bad blood. The food is fermenting in the stomach, only partly digested, because the stomach is weak.

Take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and notice the difference in your condition. You will be able to eat three good meals a day without discomfort.

The new blood, which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make, will restore the stomach to its normal condition, positively strengthen the digestive organs and increase the flow of digestive fluids.

You will also find a great improvement in your general health, and new strength in every nerve and muscle.

Do not put off finding relief a single day. Get a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills today and begin the treatment at once.

ARBITERS AVERT CARMEN'S STRIKE

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 30.—All danger of an immediate strike of the 2,200 motormen and conductors employed in the Detroit City Street car service was at an end today, following an announcement of the findings of the board of arbitrators which adjusted the differences between the Detroit United Railway and its men. The demands of the employes were granted, either entirely or in part on three of the four counts brought before the arbitrators.

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The stock market opened quiet.

11 a. m.—At the end of the first hour the market was exceedingly dull, the reaction which followed the opening rally having failed to bring out stock although as usual it evoked a lot of bearish comment from room traders. Mexican news was bearishly construed and was perhaps the main factor in checking the advance in the market.

Noon—Prices declined a little further during the second hour on talk of intervention in Mexico.

2 p. m.—There was hardly more than a shadow of a market in the early afternoon, traders apparently waiting an announcement of President Wilson's Mexican policy.

The stock market closed steady.

Chicago Grain Review.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30—Heavy wheat reports from Argentina and Manitoba caused weakness in the wheat cable, which was reflected in the opening here by lower prices. December opened 1-2c down and May 1-4c down, and both declined a further fraction during the forenoon.

Corn was affected by wheat at the opening, and sold 3-8c down for December and 1-4c down for May. Buying was liberal on the dip and prices advanced 1-4c for December and May during the morning.

Oats were easier with other grains, opening 1-8c to 1-4c down. December declined a further fraction during the forenoon.

Provisions were firm with hogs.

Wheat prices steadied in the afternoon and advanced fractionally. December closed ⅜c higher and May steady. Corn continued to advance, December closing ½c higher and May ¼c higher. Oats gained slightly with wheat and December closed steady and May ⅛c higher.

Provisions remained steady.

ENTRANCE FEE FOR HIGH SCHOOL MEET

Contestants in State Interscholastic at Maidson to Pay Small Sum

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 30.—Next season and from then on, it is probable that schools wishing to compete in the annual athletic meet at Madison, held under the auspices of the Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic association, will be compelled to pay an entrance fee. Methods of making the meet pay all of its expenses will be discussed by the official board of the association at its annual business meeting, which will attend the convention of the Wisconsin Teachers' association here, Nov. 6, 7 and 8.

Several plans for gathering more money into the treasury of the association will be discussed. It is probable that individual contestants will be required to pay an entrance fee, but the plan generally favored is of taxing the schools which are members of the association.

One of the important duties of the association this year is to elect a successor to J. A. Hagemann of Fort Atkinson, chairman of the board of directors. Mr. Hagemann has served his full three years' term. He has retired from actual educational work and that will necessitate the election of a new director.

The other members of the board are John Callahan, Menasha, president of the Wisconsin Teachers' association, who has two years more of his term to serve, and Principal G. A. Chamberlain of the East Division High school of this city, who was elected last year.

PACKEY VS. BRITTON

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 30.—Articles were to be signed for a bout between Packey McFarland and Jack Britton of Chicago, to be staged here on November 26. The fight is to be at 135 pounds at 3 o'clock.

GRIDIRON GOSSIP

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 30.—Another blow was handed the Harvard football team today as a result of the injury to Rex Hitchcock, the varsity left tackle who wrenched an ankle in practice and had to be carried off the field. It is not likely that he will be able to play against Cornell Saturday. Eddie Mahan's ankle is worse and he has been taken to the infirmary. L. Curtis took Hitchcock's place today and Bradlee is in Mahan's position at left halfback.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 30.—A stiff signal practice followed by scrimmage with the Freshmen was the program for the Tigers today in preparation for their hard go with the Missouri miners Saturday. The coaches are taking no chance with Rolla.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 30.—Ohmeyer, the husky C. B. C. tackle, out of the lineup for two weeks with broken slats today suited up and went through light practice although his ribs are still unmended. Signal work today will finish the work for the De Paul game Saturday

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 30.—Desperately anxious to win but with the odds against them, twenty Gophers will board the Pioneer Limited at 8 p. m. tonight for Milwaukee, enroute to Madison for Saturday's game with Wisconsin. Light signal practice will be indulged in this afternoon and at Milwaukee tomorrow. About 400 rooters will accompany the squad.

Although Minneapolis has developed strength since the defeat at Lincoln two weeks ago, the team has not shown the "punch" its supporters have hoped for.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 30.—H. A. Pumpelly, Yale back, whose kick in the last few minutes of the play against Princeton last year was the sensation of the football season, was said to be seriously injured today and his kicking is over for this year. His ankle was turned and sprained in a scrimmage.

OFFERS TO PLAY SPARTA NOV. 15

Oshkosh Coach Repeats Unfair Charges but Suggests a Date for Game

OSHKOSH, Wis., Oct. 30.—Coach Glyer of Oshkosh high in regard to the Oshkosh-Sparta controversy on Wednesday afternoon stated that nobody ever predicted what the Sparta-Oshkosh score ought to have been, but he was sure he could beat them and that he had Nov. 15 open and would play them on that date at Oshkosh or any neutral centrally located grounds, preferably Ripon or Appleton.

"We have it pretty straight," he says, "that our boys were tipped off to the Sparta boys, because of the rumors current, and from what we learned afterward. The umpire favored the Sparta boys on every play in the false calls of the ball, when the Sparta boys drew us off side we were penalized, while this year's rules call that a foul and we don't see why we should be penalized, nevertheless we got the penalties.

"I was under the impression our manager, Mr. Lane, had written Sparta in regard to the return game; upon asking him I found he had not, but Nov. 15 is open and we are willing to play. There was talk of the return game when we left the grounds and I think that is where the misunderstanding came in about the return game."

DELANEY VS. CONLEY

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Cal Delaney, the clever little Cleveland scrapper, who bested Mattie McCue at Racine Tuesday night, was today matched to meet Frankie Conley at Racine on November 4.

You may frequently encounter a woman without money, but she doesn't get far removed from her powder puff.

EVERS TO GOLF

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Manager John Evers of the Cubs never swung a mashie in his life, but when he boarded a train for Excelsior Springs, Mo., today he carried a choice collection of golf sticks. Friends of Evers told him that golf was a great recuperator and he intends to give it a trial.
